Beliefs:

The RPSTA believes that the Local Implementation and Negotiation Committee (LINC) and its Table Officers to be charged with the duty of bargaining on behalf of its members and in the best interest of its members.

The relationships developed in bargaining are not more important than our relationships with the teachers we represent.

LINC is empowered to use the best bargaining practices, procedures, strategies, techniques or models as deemed necessary in order to arrive at the best possible contract for its members.

Representation on LINC & LINC Advisory should be as broad-based as possible. Broad based representation refers to, but is not limited to, factors such as teaching assignments (i.e. grade level, subjects, special education, teacher librarians, itinerants, substitutes, consultants, school-based administrators etc), gender, teaching experience, bargaining experience, and special interests.
